WHO WAS SHE?

Not that coat! Put it down, lad, for none has worn it.
She is the sister of the man who was
And no one shall wear it—I tell you I've sworn it.
Put it down, sir, confound you! What? Joking,
sir? No!

All right, lad—not angry, for how could you know it?
A faded old blouse, a thief wouldn't steal
Your uncle's an ass and a worse ass to show it.
But that coat's a memento of when life was rich.

You come here and smoke, and you tell me
your troubles—
How Mary is cruel, or Ethel is chaff.
Well, once I was happy in blowing life's bubbles.
I once was a fool, and I wish I were still.

Half way up life's hill with your twenty-one summers,
You gaze up at me going over the crest,
And you think I was always old. All men are mummers.
And I've played the lover along with the best.

What? Tell you? Not best not to take spoil ashes.
We touch them, and sometimes they burst
into flames.
Old memories glow, and the pain fades out
And fades out the world with a hopeless stride.

Idle talks of old dreams that have passed as life's May did.
A weed! Ah, that's better! What nonsense
Of a scarce fit flattery that flickered and faded.
Then died—as my thought of it does now—in smoke.

What? You're serious still? There, be off to your tent.
Her name was—I've tried to remember, but I can't.
You'll find as you go that the memory of man
Is treacherous thing. No, it wasn't your aunt —London July.

Curious incident.
The limpet was a curious kind of shellfish. They resemble the abalone in their habits. Their interior is made of the most brilliant colors,
brilliant and iridescent hues predominating. They are found on the west coast of Mexico and are so large that the people use them for washbasins.

This has been conducted by the assessment that the growers never wash
and compared with Mark Twain's remark about the Marcellise—that they made the best soap in the world and were the authors of the famous song, but as a matter of fact the Marcellise never sing and do not use soap.

The limpets are ferocious animals and prey with great voracity on clams. The process seems slow, but the limpet always gets there. He gets his cover over the unsuspecting clam and puts his big foot on his shell, generally on a weak spot.
Then he whips out a long wiry tongue and proceeds to bore a hole in his captive. When this is done, the shell opens, and the limpet is free to feast on the poor clam's cass. He eats but a part and leaves the rest for the fishes of the sea.—

One Barber's Grievance.
My favorite barber is a merry little fellow, and I always believed until the other day that he was one of the happiest persons in the world. But I have learned that he is no happier than most of us.

"Yes," he said, "like the business
first rate, and I get lots of tips, and I expect soon to be able to set up for myself. But there is one drawback about it. I can't eat onions. A barber whose breath smells of onions would never secure steady customers. Now, I am an Italian and passionately fond of onions. But I refrain from them anything I know of except, perhaps, garlic. No man ever yearns after a drink more than I do after onions. It is the hardest kind of a trial to have to keep a cas-tiron grip on my appetite all the time.
I think I should be the happiest man in the world if I could eat onions and garlic to my heart's content."—New York Herald.

Russian Greetings.
A Russian throws himself on the ground at his master's feet, clasps
his knees and kisses them. A Pole bows down to the ground or kisses his master's shoulder. A Bohemian kisses the lower leg of the gentleman by his superior. At meeting a Russian says, "Dobry vuytro" ("Good health"), or, "Dobry dnya" ("Good day"). When separating for a lengthened period,
"Proshchayto" ("Farewell")—i. e., for leaving you so soon.—Lander and Volkerunde.

Disease Germs.
The explanation of the bacteriologist as to the difference in the effect of disease germs on the human organism is simply that of the Bible.
Some germs fall on good ground and multiply, others on stony ground and fail to grow or wither at once. When a typhoid germ is breathed into the lungs, it perishes just as do the myriad of other germs which we daily
swallow with the food or drink,
and finds after running the gauntlet
of the juices of the stomach a suitable place for growth in the intestines.
The germ grows and multiplies, and the ordinary phenomena of the disease result.—Baltimore Sun.

One of Toole's Jokes.
Toole, the great comedian, is an inventive practical joker. Several years ago he gave supper to 80 of his friends, but before he had written a note privately to each one asking him if he would be so good as to say grace, as no clergyman would be present. When Toole rapped on the table as a signal for grace, and the 80 men arose to their feet, the faces of the company were a study never to be forgotten.—Exchange.

Good Cause For Sorrow.
An uncle who has just lost his only nephew is in despair, and cries continually: "What kills me is the knowledge that no one now will be sorry when I die. It's horrible, horrible, to think of."—Paris Gazette.

try they get married and fight

SHUTTING DOWN THE MILLS.
Well, the worst has come to the worst, wife.
The mills they shut down tonight
For the company's been a-sleazin'.
Their money clear put 'er right.

And they ain't no orders a-comin',
And the market is dreadful slack.
And the whole concern, the super says,
Is just a-goin' to crack.

So they closed the doors tonight, wife,
And I couldn't keep back the tears.
To see them shuttin' the doors for good
That had sprung for so many years.

But it isn't so bad for us, wife,
For we're nary chilek nor chilek.
But Jim and the rest of our fellows,
They're shootin' in the mill.

I've worked by the side of Jim now
For a dozen years and more,
And I never see him look so blue
And so despondent before.

Just think of them little children,
I know 'em, and I know 'em well.
Wouldn't change places with no how with us,
This night, you kin bet your life.

Well, they're plenty and plenty of others,
That's in no better trim.
I can't see straight from myself, but I can Keep a-thinkin' of Jim.

But if you haven't the heart, wife,
To see a blain angel at night,
Well, do as you say, help Jim's wee kids,
While we have the sun and the light.

Two the mills has shut down, my own wife,
Gone hands they are open wide.
And as we share with the poorer than us,
No fear but he will provide.

—M. Dawson Phelps in New York Sun.

He Was Probably Fitting.
I had an experience once that was rather unique in the hunting line.
It was years ago when the old fashioned muzzle loaders were in vogue, and I never knew it to be duplicated. I was out duck hunting and came upon a pond that was filled with ducks—mallards, teal, headstuds, etc. It seemed that there was a sort of union meeting, and I had stumbled in on it without giving the reason in. Naturally I hauled up and blazed away.
I couldn't stop to aim; in fact, I didn't need to, but it rained ducks around there while I was reloading. There were so many ducks they couldn't get away because they were crowded together so tight that they couldn't fly, and I let go both barrels a second time.

When I started to load again, I found my ramrod missing. I was furious, but I could do nothing without it, so I sat down and waited for the fall of ducks to cease. In about 15 minutes they stopped dropping,
and I could see clearly once more.
Across the pond was my ramrod
sticking into a tree, but in its flight from the gun it had gone through the neck of a duck, and there they hung like a row of game in front of a butcher shop. I've got the ramrod up in my room now.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

The First Hole Canal Cargo.
A gentleman residing in the western part of the city says he had a conversation the other morning with Captain Houghton, and during the talk learned the following bit of history:

John M. Houghton of Frankfort, Herkimer county, who was 11 years of age when the Erie canal was opened, is a hale man yet. He went on the canal driver when he was 15 years old. He afterward became a canal boat captain and the owner of the boat William Tell, which was the first boat to pass over the canal from Buffalo to Albany and down the river to New York. Her cargo consisted entirely of hogheads, barrels and bottles of Lake Erie water, part of which was mingled with the waters of the bay of New York on the occasion of the grand fête in celebration of the opening of the wonderful waterway. Her passengers included Governor De Witt Clinton, the leader in the canal enterprise, and a delegation of statesmen and distinguished persons from foreign lands and various parts of the United States.—Utica Observer.

A True Patriot.
"How did you like France, mein
herr? You spent six months there,
I understand."
"Oh, the country is good enough,
but the language is abominable."
"How so?"
"It's not half so musical as our German tongue. For example, when a German makes love to a woman he says 'Ich liebe dich.' Ich liebe dich which certainly sounds very sweet.
A Frenchman, on the other hand,
grows 'Che fou name! Che fou name!' which to me sounds very brutal."—Paris Figaro.

THE English Army is now using a single barrel gun, which it is said will fire 700 shots per minute.

THE Paragon is the name of a bright new paper published at Somerset. It is a model country paper. Long may it live.

It was a stinging, snowy blizzard and it swept the West and North-west, doing great damage to property, delaying railroad traffic and causing great suffering.

THE report of the Railroad Commissioners, which has just been issued, is a volume filled with useful information concerning the railroads of the State. Although reported the mileage of road in the school districts of the county from some cause is omitted. Accompanying the report is a very fine railroad map of the State.

THE Barbourville Outlook has changed managements and also names. It is now the Knox County News. The paper has been changed to a six column all home print paper. It is bright and new.

LET every Republican turn out to the Precinct Convention on February 24, and take a hand in naming the nominees for the various county offices. Never in the history of the party in this county have we had so good a chance to win and this should encourage every member of the party to renewed interest and zeal. Come out, and from among the good men who are candidates help to choose the nominees who will carry the Republican banner to victory in November.

ON Saturday, February 24, at 1 o'clock the Republicans of the county will meet in Precinct Conventions and instruct delegates for the County Convention to be held in Hartford the following Monday for the purpose of nominating candidates for the various county offices to be filled at the election on the 6th of next November. The number of Republican candidates by summaries is as follows: For Surveyor, 0; for Sheriff, 0; for Clerk, 2; for Assessor, 2; for County Judge, 3; for County Attorney, 3; for Jailor, 5. Making a total for county offices of 15. One Republican is announced for Magistrate.

FIVE weeks from to-morrow, which will be Saturday, March 3, is the Democratic Primary Election. There are a host of candidates and the contest promises to be a lively one. The contestants are already whetting their knives and things will soon begin to get hot. The candidates by summaries are as follows: For Surveyor, 0; for Sheriff, 1; for County Clerk, 1; for Coroner, 1; for County Attorney, 2; for County Judge, 6; for Assessor, 12, and last but by no means least, for Jailor, 16, making a grand total for county offices, 39. There are three announced candidates for Magistrate, making a total of 42. There are seven county offices to be filled at the November election. So that there are of the Democratic candidates alone an average of five applicants for each office with four to spare.

JUDGE GEORGE DENNY, Jr., of Lexington, is favorably spoken of for Governor on the Republican ticket next year. He is one of the ablest men in the State, and has been a hard worker for the party. In a recent interview by a Kentucky Leader reporter among a great many other good things on the financial situation has the following to say: "I think the reason of our trouble is that people who are engaged in the manufacturing business will not put their money in their business at the present time on account of the uncertainty of the action of the Democratic party upon the tariff. It is strange to me that, considering the history of tariff legislation of the last three-quarters of a century, any party that has the interest of the people at heart will advocate a tariff for revenue only, or virtually free trade, because the history of our country shows that whenever we have had a tariff for revenue only financial depression inevitably came and the country had to go back to a protective tariff to be relieved of its distress."

"We might except a few years after the Walker tariff of 1846, under which the country had prosperous times on account of the war with Mexico, the discovery of gold in California and the Crimean war, which took our surplus products and created prosperity in the country for a few years; but as soon as these unusual conditions passed away the country relapsed into a state of financial depression under the existence of a tariff for revenue only."

"Being a lawyer and a consumer and not a producer I should as a matter of necessity be in favor of free trade, but I think it is the duty of every patriotic man to be in favor of those measures which will bring the greatest good to the greatest number. Free trade is beautiful in theory—to buy where you can buy the cheapest, to sell where you can sell the highest and the world for a market—but in practice protection has demonstrated that it is the proper governmental policy for this country. It diversifies labor and places our wage earners upon a higher plane than those of any other people upon the face of the earth."

DEATHFIELD. Prof. Stumm, of Whitesville, passed through town Friday, enroute for Fordsville.

Anderson Mercer is in town. Mr. William Miller visited his father Saturday and Sunday at Reynolds.

Mr. E. T. Williams, the hustling candidate for County Judge, was in town last week.

Mr. C. T. Pierson, who has been confined to his room for sometime with sore eyes, is no better.

G. C. Roberts, of Owensboro, spent Saturday and Sunday in town.

W. R. Jones, of Fordville, was here Tuesday on business.

Mr. Nat. McCarty, wife and two accomplished daughters, Misses Delilah and Florence, were the guests of Mrs. G. W. Kelley Sunday.

The debate, at Etanville, which has been in progress for the last five months, closed Wednesday night. The young people acquitted themselves with credit throughout the whole time, never allowing the interest to grow less, but it steadily increased in interest to the close.

Misses Florence Wright and Emma Kelly were in Whitesville Saturday.

Hartford. During her brief stay in our midst she has made many friends, both as a teacher and a lady. Her scholars were devoted to her and the patrons say she did her duty toward the pupils of that district. They appreciate her worth and wish her success in all her undertakings.

The trains on the O. F. & G. R. R. collided one day last week at Whitesville, through the carelessness of a brakeman in forgetting to turn the switch after one of the trains was on the side-track. One man got his arm broken and another his shoulder hurt. The two engines were completely demolished and it is thought that they will not be of any more use.

Married, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. John Wade, Thursday afternoon at four o'clock, Mr. Robert Colyer to Miss Ona Wade, Rev. Brandon officiating. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple with their many friends repaired to the home of Mr. I. Wells, where a bounteous supper was in readiness. The contracting parties stand high in this community and no couple ever started out in life with brighter prospects of happiness than did this couple on last Thursday evening.

Another wedding next week.

I see in your paper of last week the announcement of one of Ohio county's most talented young men, Mr. G. Davis Royal, as a candidate for Assessor. It is my opinion that no better choice could be made for the Republican nominee, and if Ohio county Republicans knew Mr. Royal as I know him, he would surely be nominated for Assessor. He is a gentleman of the purest type. Three cheers for Davis Royal.

OBSERVER.

Tells, in a Plain Way, How the Blind Tiger Business is Conducted.

BEAVER DAM, KY., Jan. 23, '94.

MR. EDITOR:—Perhaps it might now be well to point out more explicitly the modus operandi, so to speak, of the blind tigers of our town.

And in the beginning it is proper to remark that the people know who it is that is selling liquor here. They know where the principal headquarters are and who it is that runs the establishment. They know perfectly well what business is put forth as a blind to cover up the tracks of the tiger. They know that the bust-skull whisky sold is shipped to the tiger in half barrels, boxed up as freight.

All these things are perfectly plain. The people also have a pretty strong idea that the boss blind tiger, so to speak, has Government license, though he does not keep them posted as conspicuously in his place of business, perhaps, as the law requires. I know some fellows are awfully smart and all that, but the blind tigers of Beaver Dam may take this as a notice that the people are up to their tricks. Perhaps a stranger would go into the den and come out without any suspicion as to the character of the establishment, but he needs only to watch the stream of humanity that flows into the place to determine what is going on. Only the higher grade of customers—the more trusted ones—those least liable to swear the truth, are sold to direct, by the tiger himself. He chooses his customers who shall stand up before his bar and be served over the counter by his own law-breaking hands. But he provides a way to reach all—even what might be termed the more dangerous element—that is dangerous to his business. For the accommodation of this element who are doubted because either strangers or persons too much inclined to tell the truth, he has engaged a couple of negroes and makes cats-paws of them. They can be sneaking about the lively stables with their customers who reap there to exchange the cash for the liquor. Here it is in a nutshell: A man wants a drink or a half pint or a pint of whisky, he, if one of the chosen, goes direct to the den for it. If not one of the trusted customers, he hunts up one of these deluded and misguided negroes who himself goes to the den and procures the stuff which he conceals under his clothing or carries in a carelessly wrapped package and by a series of supposed nice maneuvers he finally sneaks around some corner or behind a building or more frequently perhaps into a lively stable followed by his customer, and thus the exchange is made. Why these negroes will thus be made tools of, is hard to tell but it is true. The guilty party, however, is the brazen-faced, heartless wretch who furnishes the whisky and who to all intents and purposes does the selling. One or both of these negro cats-paws were indicted at the last sitting of the Grand Jury, but the fellow who is the cause of all the devilment, went free.

But the people of Beaver Dam mean that the selling of liquor shall cease or that the offending parties shall give the reason why. It is high time the blind tigers are quaking in their shoes and are consulting attorneys, etc. But this will be of no avail. It must be an unconditional surrender and that surrender must be made at once. The people of Beaver Dam have decided that they will no longer be insulted by the impudent violations perpetrated by this spotted trio made up of two worthless negroes and the boss blind tiger. But just isn't that a combination? The Big Three of Beaver Dam! And what are the Big Three doing? They are setting at naught the law of the land and rebelling against their own peace and its good name. But God and the people are against them and they must fall. There is no time for delay. Now is the accepted time to strike the blow. In the name of all that is good and pure, in the name of justice and morality and education and virtue and religion, and in the name of the homes of Beaver Dam and community, let the people and the town authorities take decisive action. Do not wait for your neighbor, act for yourself and that will encourage him to act. Let our demands be made so unmistakably plain that there can be not the shadow of a doubt in the minds of the authorities as to what we want and mean to have. Yea, verily the days of the blind tigers in Beaver Dam are numbered and as such the ways that now know him shall know him no more, thanks be to the deep-rooted love of law and order imbedded in the very nature of our people.

It is undoubtedly a disease of the blood and as such only a reliable blood purifier can affect a permanent cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier and it has cured many severe cases of Catarrh. Catarrh oftentimes leads to consumption. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla before it is too late.

HOOD'S PILLS do not purge, pain, or gripe, but act promptly, easily and efficiently. 25c.

To County Superintendents and Others.

FRANKFORT, KY., Jan. 15, 1893.

Complaints are reaching this office with increasing frequency that some agents for the sale of maps, charts, and other illustrative apparatus are giving much offense by misrepresentations, through which they impose upon the people, and it becomes my duty to notice the charges made, that your attention may be directed to whatever abuses may really exist. It is clear that there is some ground for serious disaffection.

It is alleged:—

1. That some men induce trustees to take their articles by declaring that the County Superintendent has adopted them for all his districts and that they cannot, therefore, legally buy any other.

2. That they are exceedingly "learned in the law" reading and expounding it and dwelling upon its penalties, to the confusion of trustees, who, in some instances, are led to buy superfluous things and more costly ones than are necessary, and thus shamefully to increase the burdens of the district.

3. That men having but an insignificant part of the required outfit succeed, by misquoting the statute and garbling such recommendations as they have obtained, in selling such incomplete outfit for about as much as a complete equipment ought to cost. (Trustees are advised to buy only these combinations or sets which fully meet the demand of the law. To buy here a little and there a little will result in spending two, three, or four times too much money.)

It is important that County Superintendents guard themselves against being misquoted or misrepresented in the matter, and that they protect their people by warning them against those unscrupulous persons who are fast bringing into odium, not only the law, but all the good and true men engaged in the work.

What the General Assembly aimed at was to largely increase the efficiency of the teacher at a comparatively insignificant outlay—making it possible to impart real instruction on all the branches of our long course of study, but the law has been made the means, in certain localities, of exasperating the people against it, and in a few instances of swindling them.

In several instances I have cordially recommended combinations of maps, charts, globes, &c., for two reasons: First, they seemed to me to cover our course of study and to meet all the demands of the law. Second, I was assured that such outfit as I held to be sufficient should cost each district less than fifty dollars. I learn with astonishment that some into whose hands copies of these letters have fallen are misquoting and misconstruing to make the impression that the State Superintendent favors only a particular outfit; so that my efforts to protect the people have been perverted to their hurt. Some County Superintendents have experienced the same treatment.

The people have their remedy: In cases where trustees have paid money or given notes to cover exorbitant prices for school supplies, they ought to proceed against the perpetrators of the fraud under the Statute for punishing those who obtain money by false pretenses.

Of the surgeon there is no more acute suffering than people endure every day with Rheumatism. Distorted and withered limbs mark its ravages everywhere. Dr. Drummond's Lightning Remedy for Rheumatism has a remarkable record of cures—not only relieving the pain, but restoring all the functions of the crippled limbs. There is no reason for any one to suffer longer when this wonderful remedy affords such certain relief. GOSSIP.

Many of the citizens of the town were not a little disturbed last Saturday night by the firing of a pistol on the streets. A great number of shots were fired and things put on a "Wild West" appearance. Who says this town has a Marshal?

The knowing ones say that there will be a wedding in town before many months that will surprise every body on the out side.

It is said that a certain boarding-house keeper in town has a bill against a certain high flyer for board amounting to forty dollars, for which he will take fifty cents on the dollar.

If the Churches in Hartford were to exclude all their members who either drink whisky, gamble, play cards, swear or cheat, there would not be enough left to fill a half-dozen pews.

The Janitor at the College, one day last week, saw on the blackboard this sentence, "Find the greatest common divisor." "Hello!" said he, "is that confounded thing lost again?"

A tramp once rang a door bell and asked the trim, pretty woman who opened the door if she would kindly ask the doctor if he had a pair of old trousers that he was willing to give away and the plump and pleasing woman said, "I am the doctor." The tramp fainted.

"Around her waist I put my arms, It felt as soft as cake; 'Oh, dear!' says she, 'what liberty You printer boys do take!'"

"Why, yes, my Sal, my charming gal, (I squeezed her some, I guess), Can you say ought, my chick, against The Freedom of the Press?"

"I kissed her some, I did, by gum, She colored like a beet; Upon my living soul she looked Almost too good to eat."

"I gave another buss, and then, Says she, 'I do confess, I rather, kinder, sorter like The Freedom of the Press.'"

I am authorized to announce in this column Dr. W. Alexander as a candidate for "Kerener." He has not yet decided whether he will run as an Old Line Whig, a Demmykrat or a Pope-ulist, but he is a candidate, just the same. He wants the office and "wants it bad." He is exceedingly qualified for the place and promises in case he is elected and his services are needed he will not be more than five days and a-half in getting to the scene of his labors. The Doctor is a monometalist and is in favor of the Free and Unlimited Coinage of Silver. He is in favor of taking the tax off of all kind of spirits and in making them "as free as the air of the mountain, and monarch of all they survey."

He is opposed to the Nicaragua Canal as impracticable but favors a bridge from New York to Liverpool. Now, if he can find a party that believes these things he wants to be endorsed. His cards will be out between now and the time the next moon gets full.

The latest society organized in town is The Amalgamated Association of Unsophisticated Liars which holds sessions almost every night at some one of the various stores in town. The first public exhibition was on last Tuesday night when the members lied for the championship of the club. Mr. S. A. Anderson carried off the honors without difficulty, but his closest competitors, Messrs. J. H. Williams and R. E. L. Simmerman say they will "fix him" next time. It requires no effort on the part of the members of this society—it is a matter of spontaneity with them.

CAUTION—If any dealer offers you W. L. Douglas shoes at a reduced price, or says he has them without the name stamped on the bottom, put him down as a fraud.

W. L. DOUGLAS Shoes are stylish, easy fitting, and give better satisfaction at the prices advertised than any other make. Try one pair and be convinced. The stamping of W. L. Douglas's name and price on the bottom, which guarantees their value, saves thousands of dollars annually to those who wear them. Dealers who push the sale of W. L. Douglas Shoes gain customers, which helps to increase the sales on their full line of goods. They can afford to sell at a less profit, and we believe you can save money by having all your footgear of the durable advanced make. Catalogue free upon application. W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.
